JAPANESE EATS PIN AND MEDAL WHEN ARRESTED

Nearly nude, a Japanese went bathing on Hotel street this morning. He's drying out now in the city jail.

Kinoshita Kichimatsu is his name and fishing his occupation. However, he wasn't fishing in the gutter. It is thought by the police he was cooling his "fevered brow."

Besides entertaining a number of passersby with his queer antics on the street, Kichimatsu horrified the police by eating parts of a scarf pin and a badge of honor during examination at the jail.

The police believe the medal was one from the Russo-Japanese war, which he was anxious to keep with him. He still has a portion of it inside.

Detective Henry Silva first "spotted" the Japanese about 8:30 this morning in front of the armory. Silva was on his way to the jail on a Hotel street car.

"He only had on his underclothes," says Silva, "and from his actions I knew something was wrong. I jumped off and took after him. He made for a gutter running full of muddy water. There he took his first dive. When I got hold of him he fought and tried to go back into the water. I walked him down to a telephone and called the 'wagon.' Three times he threw his coat and trousers, which he was carrying, into the mud and stamped upon them. Why he did it I don't know. I guess he wanted to get them thoroughly soaked."

In the patrol wagon Kichimatsu continued to struggle. He seemed to take to the water like a duck, according to the police, and continually wanted to return to it. At the station he was interviewed by an interpreter but little could be learned. Captain McDuffie ordered him locked up for a few days to recuperate. A friend of the father told the police the Japanese was a habitual drinker. A passerby told Silva that before the latter came the Japanese was lying full length nearly submerged in the gutter.

BEST COSTUMES TO BE AWARDED GRAND PRIZES

In line with the benefit series of dances, the first being given this spring at the National Guard armory for the enlisted men's club rooms, a third masked dance will be held next Saturday evening.

So successful was the masked dance held two weeks ago that Sergt. Bruce W. Shelton, sergeant instructor of the guard, has decided to offer a prize for the best costumed couple. Another added feature will be the renting of costumes at the armory on the evening of the dance, so that no person will need to stay away because of lack of a costume.

Music will be furnished again by the Royal Hawaiian Glee Club which played at the last big event. Admission fee for gentlemen will be 50 cents, but ladies will be admitted free of charge.

It has also been decided to place the time of starting half an hour later owing to the lengthening of the days, the dance on Saturday night beginning at 8 o'clock instead of 7:30.

GRAIN THEFTS ARE PUNISHED BY LONG TERM

Frank Davenport was sentenced in police court this morning to serve six months for stealing grain from the City Transfer Company. The defendant was tried on three counts. On the first two he was given three months each, and on the third a suspended sentence.

John August's trial for embezzlement was set for Thursday. Ah Hing, accused of assault with a weapon, appears Saturday; attorneys for A. Vanzae, said to have received stolen goods, were granted a jury trial; six

APPEALS FROM ORDER MADE BY ACCIDENT BODY

John J. Carroll, plaintiff in a damage suit against the Matcon Wireless Telegraph Company of America, today filed notice in circuit court of an appeal from the final order and decision in his case as delivered by the territorial Industrial Accident Board last Friday.

According to the board's decision on that date, "the evidence produced before the board failed to establish the fact of a disability to John J. Carroll resulting from accident of August 7, 1915, and that in the opinion of this board the said John J. Carroll is not entitled to compensation under the act."

In making his appeal Carroll, through his attorney, George E. Davis, demands a jury trial in the issues of the matter, and asks and requires that the board shall send up to circuit court all papers relating to the case.

SUCCESSFUL BIDDER DOES NOT FILE BOND

No bond has been filed, as required by law, by Harry S. Sands, successful bidder for the construction of a culvert over Nuhanu avenue near the Country Club. He was awarded the contract Friday, contingent on his filing the proper bond.

Sands is unknown to the other contractors who bid on the job or to city officials. His bid was but $1837. Other bids were from $2195 up. Those who ought to know say that the work cannot be done profitably at Sands' figure and expect him to forfeit the contract and the certified check for $125 that accompanied his bid.
